DEMAND CURE FOR OBSTRUCTION FOR SENATE MINORITY

ever sixteen members of the senate signed a petition to end debate, the senate must take a vote on a motion to limit the time that each senator could talk before a vote had to be taken. But the same rule provided that two thirds must approve the motion to limit debate.

Two Thirds Locking.
President Harding didn't have a two-thirds majority for the ship subsidy bill. Few bills ever have that much support unless they are absolutely non-partisan. So in order to get any legislation through, two-thirds of the senate must really consent to the legislation.

Mr. Harding had his biggest party majority in the session of congress just ended. The republicans will have a scant majority in both house and senate next time. Still it will be possible for them to get things put through party measures by adopting under the majority rule all motions to limit debate. In the senate that some republican already have shown that they care very little about administration measures or party solidarity.

Revision of Rules.
Only by a revision of the rules to permit a majority to adopt a motion to limit debate can the Harding administration hope to get through any of the important measures. It may sponsor in the next two years. It was by a popular campaign against Cannonism and the arbitrary character of the house rules that a change was made in the lower house and there are those in the president's party who believe the time is ripe for another effort to put the public sentiment to bring about a change in the senate.

As matters stand now, six new or an even smaller group can block action by the senate on any measure they oppose simply by using up the time in debate in relays. Any one more than a third of the senate can always prevent the passage of a motion by the remainder of the senate to limit debate.

Southern Democrats Oppose.
The principal opponents of any radical change in the senate rules have been southern democrats. The latter have felt that the right of unlimited debate alone prevents the enactment of a so-called "house bill" to extend the rights of the negro in the south. It was a filibuster of southern democrats which killed the anti-lynching bill which passed the house but which was abandoned by the republicans after they were convinced the entire time of the senate would be taken up by a democratic filibuster unless the measure was put aside.

The republicans, therefore, are the natural champions of a revision of senate rules. Without a popular demand for it, however, the vote would be taken along party lines and it is conceded that with the decreased strength in the next congress the move would have little if any chance of success. It would not be surprising, however, to see President Harding campaign for such a change and make it one of the dominant issues of his next speaking tour.

Harding on Filibuster.
He already has said that some way must be found to permit the majority to rule. He has not suggested what kind of a change in senate procedure he would favor. Mr. Mondell has just finished his service in the house and has become a member of the War Finance Corporation, but his position as republican leader permits him to make a retrospective criticism. In fact, his entire statement of the legislative record of the last congress is accepted here as the forerunner of further statements upon which the strategy of the 1924 campaign will be based. There is already an anticipation of more obstructive tactics in the next congress so that a shifting of responsibility to the minority would be a natural defense against inaction. More will be heard about the senate rules from now on. Mr. Mondell's speech was a keynote of the future.

way is to have three circular flares turned down, the top one a few inches below the elbow and the lowest one falling over the hand. The sleeve of the satin or chiffon frock may start out to be long and tight, but at the elbow it is very apt to change its mind and end by being cut and flowing quite as fashionably, however, it may be a full flowing sleeve straight from the shoulder.

The three-piece suit is still in high favor for spring. It is such a convenient and becoming costume, particularly for afternoon when one drops into a restaurant for tea or goes calling. The lovely blouses which keep forth as one opens the jacket make really a very dressy costume, appropriate for almost any and every function of the afternoon.

An almost limitless choice is offered your fancy when you are choosing the blouse for one of these suits. If your taste inclines to the Oriental, a blouse of Persian patterned silk will suit the mode as well as your personality. Of course, it will be long-waisted, cut to fit snugly about the hips or gathered into a tightly fluted band.

Now and again a button cleverly placed will hold the jacket so snugly about the hips that it has a tendency toward a slight blouse or perhaps it would be quite frankly a little blouse and gathered into a tight band at the hips. With these jackets the line of the skirt is straight. There may be a little draping at one side, but not a circular flare.

As often as not the three-piece suit consists of a dress instead of a skirt and a costume blouse.

Whether you golf or whether you motor or whether you are just an interested spectator on the sidelines of sports, of course, you are wearing sporty clothes. For the sports costume, which year by year has been becoming more and more popular, has reached the topnotch of fashion and is just the thing to be worn almost every hour of the day. It may be because we are more keen for sports, it may be the effect of the ever-present country club, but surely one great reason is its youthful dash and smartness. It is so unashamedly becoming to every age and type.

Get ALL The Power from Your Engine

SLOW starting—stalling—any number of engine troubles—are due to improper lubrication. This is particularly true in winter.

If you are not using Polarine, you are not getting all the power your engine is capable of delivering—nor all the economy. Polarine will avoid undue strain on battery and on starter. It will avoid worn bearings and scored cylinders.

Polarine gets into action the moment the engine starts, because its viscosity is scientifically correct—its body stable, without being heavy. Its consistency, even in the coldest weather, is such that it spreads quickly, forming a perfect film between all the moving metal surfaces.

Polarine is scientifically adapted to develop the full efficiency of your engine. The grade of Polarine specified in the chart is specified by our Board of Lubricating Engineers, who know the design and construction of your car.

THE PERFECT MOTOR OIL
Made in Five Grades

It is the oil chosen by the driver who wants pep, economy and power from his car.

Polarine is a specialized product—made only from crudes chosen for their high lubricating properties.

Polarine avoids carbon troubles. This is proved by hundreds of tests, in laboratory and on the road—under toughest driving conditions.

Specify Polarine. Don't leave the choice of an oil to the garageman. The length of life of your engine, as well as your own comfort in driving, is involved.

The essence of true economy is to change your motor oil every 500 miles and fill up with the right grade of Polarine.

COAL DELIVERIES DELAYED BY SNOW

Dealers From One to Three Days Behind—Trucks
Tied Up.

Retail coal dealers of Janesville are one to three days behind in deliveries, their trucks being tied up by Monday's storm. The delay is due to the fact that house-holders have not dug out their driveways thus making it impossible to place coal in cellars.

One local firm is only delivering half on loads. Another was able with one of its teams to deliver but two tons all day Tuesday.

Coal supplies here are plenty with the exception of certain hard and some sizes of coke. Hard coal at the present is moving only by railroad, the docks having been cleaned up.

Local dealers say this will make the hard coal situation probably will not ease up much before summer.

STEWART LAND CO. ORGANIZER GIVEN 5-YEAR SENTENCE

Witnesses testified they were led to believe the Texas land was developed by the Stewart Land Co. system, but that after they had moved onto the land the Edinburg system was used is exactly the contention of the southern Wisconsin client of Mr. Carpenter. It is asserted that the Edinburg system is designed to make the lands productive to farming.

One Plaintiff in Full. According to Mr. Carpenter all of his claimants have paid about half of the amounts involved in cash and the balance in notes. The balance of the notes, however, says Mr. Carpenter, paid in full. These notes are now part of the assets in the hands of the receiver for the Stewart firm.

In the Armstrong case, Mr. Carpenter points out, several of the notes were sold by the Stewart firm to the bank of Southern Wisconsin, then president of that bank. The bank of Southern Wisconsin has a suit pending in circuit court here to recover on the notes, claiming they were innocent purchasers. This case has been postponed several times pending the outcome of the Stewart receivership.

Receiver Appointed. A receiver was appointed over the Stewart company, said Mr. Carpenter, in order to save the money and property for the creditors and to prevent Mr. Stewart from squandering it. All pending southern Wisconsin claims must yet be put in judgment either in the Wisconsin state courts or in the federal court at Kansas City. When these are proved and expenses are paid, the claimants are to be made to pay their own.

"It is hard to tell what the assets of the company will be," said Mr. Carpenter. The late Mr. Pierce took a trip to Texas on the Armstrong case, living there for some time while making an extensive investigation. His report, however, was not made public. His claimants were pooled, a Kansas city law firm taking the case to the federal court for that district.

Those affected by the alleged frauds of Mr. Stewart were largely retired farmers who are said to have put much of their money into the Texas lands with visions of reaping fortunes from farms made unusually productive through extensive irrigation. They were taken to the development in luxurious trains, shown certain lands that were producing richly, but when sold properly were denied tracts of wilderness.

From his return, Mr. Pierce gave an interview in which he painted the misery of the persons who were alleged to have been duped. He said they were in dire straits and facing poverty, without funds even to pay railroad fare to their original homes, most of which had been sold to pay for the Texas farms.

TEMPORARY SEATS MADE FOR CAFETERIA

Equipment to seat more high school pupils in the immense cafeteria room has been made by the manual training department. The 400 or more pupils who eat there every noon are now able to eat seated. Before it was necessary to either stand or sit on the floor, as a ruling was made that all pupils must be seated in this room. In order to accommodate everybody, two periods at noon are made, half the 400 eating for the first 20 minutes, then turning over for the others. When the cafeteria equipment has been purchased and hot lunches and other meals served, it is expected that several hundred more will eat there at noon.

SCHOOL BOARD TO MEET WITH VAN RYN

H. J. Van Ryn, of the firm of Van Ryn and Detell, Milwaukee, architect for the new high school, is to meet with the board of education at its adjourned meeting at 7:30 p. m., Wednesday. The regular March meeting was held Monday, when it was found that it was best to take action on some of the final certificates for payment for work on the new building now completed. It is possible that the final bill of J. P. Chiles and Sons, including the extra, will come up, this matter having caused much discussion among board members and officials the past week.

Switchboard Arrives—House phones have all been installed at the new high school, and the switchboard, to go in with it, is being connected.

Basis of All Law

Nowhere in all the centuries of recorded speech will one find so brief and comprehensive a summary of the moral obligations due from one man to another, as is written in the Ten Commandments. They form the basis of all law, written and unwritten, that has ruled the world from the time of Hammurabi until the present. A disregard of these is responsible for the noisiest resultant from all wars.

TRIAL OF $15,000 DEATH CASE OPENS

Beloit Woman Charges Doctors
Let Husband Bleed to Death.

Testimony to support the claim of Helen Kruezer, Beloit, in her suit for $15,000 damages against Dr. J. Clyde Smith and Dr. T. F. Shinnick, both of Beloit, charging malpractice in connection with a tonsillectomy operation upon her husband, Alvin Kruezer, who died at Beloit May 9, 1921, was presented before a Rock county circuit court jury, Wednesday.

A jury was drawn for the case, Tuesday afternoon, and after the opening statements of the attorneys, was adjourned until 9:30 a. m., Wednesday, when Mrs. Rose Collins, sister of Kruezer took the stand and testified concerning the events which led up to his operation and death.

The plaintiff maintains that Dr. Shinnick had been misled that Kruezer was a bleeder or hemophiliac, when he suggested an operation for removal of greatly diseased tonsils to relieve rheumatic condition evident in spots; that Dr. Smith, a specialist was called by Dr. Shinnick to perform the operation and gave him no special treatment to prepare him nor a thorough examination, although knowing he was a bleeder. It is charged that they did not use the methods recognized by the medical community and that they carelessly, negligently and wrongfully handled the case.

Died Day After Operation

It was brought out during the morning session at which Mrs. Rose Collins, her sister Katherine Kruezer, and Mrs. Helen Kruezer testified that Kruezer was about to go out seeking for a road construction crew when he had a pain in his joints and called Dr. Shinnick, who is engaged in general practice.

Kruezer was operated upon May 8 and died May 9 after losing much blood. Mrs. Collins spoke of a conversation with Dr. Shinnick after the operation when she reminded him that he was a bleeder and quoted him as saying:

"Don't talk to me, talk to Dr. Smith."

100 WAYS To Make Money

By BILLY WINNER

If I Wanted a Car—

If I wanted to own a car, yet I thought I couldn't afford to buy a new one, I would buy unused mileage. The chances are that I would have time to search Janesville for the used car I wanted. At any rate, I'd save time and money by getting my used car through Gazette Want Ads. I would have cars brought to me for inspection, or I would search the Gazette Want Ads for my own. One way or the other, I'd be sure to find what I wanted. Later on I could trade in my used car for a new one. I'd than check it would make a substantial first payment. I wouldn't be without a car—not at present prices!

What the Snow Storm Brought.

A great snowstorm, covering the earth with a deep mantle of white, stopping traffic, interfering with the ordinary operation of the mechanics of daily existence, doing damage necessary to be paid for out of pocket in dollars and cents, and generally halting our rush to the imaginary objective of making more dollars before we die, is not generally considered a distinct benefit to a community.

We pay great sums for art, spend millions for paintings of old masters, dig in the cloistered monasteries of Europe for Gobelins and other tapestries, scurry across desert and into mountain for wonderful weaves in rugs of Bokhara, and Daghistan, collect etchings and prints; gather them in a marble palace, and thousands, seeking that will-of-the-wisp, culture, visit, applaud and grow rapturous over the touch of brush and pencil and marvel at what the chisel can accomplish.

On the one hand, refusing to see anything in the snowstorm but damage and disaster, on the other we write a rhapsody on art. And yet there is no gallery, from the Louvre, to the National Academy, from the Metropolitan to the Corcoran, that bears upon its walls so marvelous a picture as the snow storm of Sunday and Monday has painted for all who may desire to look and see. Master hand would hesitate to trace so fine a silver lacery, to background a painting with so delicate a sky as came Tuesday, or dress his landscape in such raiment of so striking a series of contrasts.

Note the differentiation in the picture between the heavy white bridal gown, with its long veil of sheening silver falling from the shoulders of the dark evergreen; the modesty of the dress of white in the procession of smaller shrubs, all parading like a confirmation class of young girls, and the patch work lightening the somberness of the giant maple and elm, patches of silver too, pendant from bare and unattractive limbs, as though Nature, wished to cover the outrageous display of nakedness of the aged, shriveled and impotent.

Nowhere was this motif strikingly noticeable than in the court house park. Here the trees seemed waiting for the very thing that happened—a new dress all in white, the last farewell to winter, the last procession of the virgins to the temple of the Frost King, in lace and diaphanous veils, in shoulder knots and ribbons, glorified in the sunlight sifted through the gray-blue clouds and spraying it all with sparkles and diamond dust.

That is a painting no man's hand can put on canvas. It somehow falls in the pigmented transference. It must be seen with all the accompanying properties—the tang of a winter day, and the vision of tomorrow's green soon to come with the change of garments to welcome spring. This is a small compensation perhaps, but isn't it worth something to transform the drab and uninviting bareness of a winter to a pageant of Nature's handiwork like this?

The soap box orator newly arrived from Europe tells his audience how much America owes to him; the impractical professor tells us all how much we owe to Europe; the European hopes we won't say a word about how much Europe owes us.

The Double Kayo for J. B. Corn.

Puffed up with conscious pride in his place in the sun after having been dug from his tomb like King Tut, where he was wrapped in mummy garments glued together with the tears of his friends, J. B. Corn, went into the legislative halls of several states confident that in the boxing contest to follow, he would emerge with the diamond belt and a championship. Here in Wisconsin he got a blow in the solar plexus that could be heard around the deeply buried moonshine stills of Milwaukee. The Severn law remains intact. Then it was tried in other states. But there too the old prize fighter found that he was outclassed and had joined the Jess Willard and Jim Jeffries battalion of has-beens. But in good old New York state where there is a metropolis, more European than American, where they think the United States is a barbaric country west of "Jolsey" city, and where life is as artificial as the flowers that bloom on the ladies' hats and cheeks, with a governor ready to repeal the 18th amendment, was to be the Waterloo of prohibition. It took one round to do the business and put the final K. O. on the booze platoon.

It seems hard for the whiskey advocate to understand the Gettysburg for the friends of J. B. Corn, understand that this nation is dry and going to remain so and that behind the prohibition enact-

PRESIDENTIAL POSSIBILITIES

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington.—It took a democrat to say of Oscar W. Underwood that he is "the best republican in the democratic party," and make a political bon mot that will be quoted as long as Senator Underwood is a presidential possibility. In vaudeville they would class that as a "dirty dig" and it is that, and more. It is clever and it is just enough of a near-truth almost to accomplish its two-fold purpose—to make the Alabama statesman wistful and to eliminate him from consideration in connection with the presidency.

It happens, however, that Senator Underwood is not one of the writhing kind. Cool, deliberate, imperturbable, as he always is, there is about as much chance of getting a rise out of him with that sort of thing as there is of annoying old King Tut with present-day Egyptian problems.

It happens, also, that it would take more than elbes at his conservatism to eliminate the senator from the list of democratic presidential possibilities. He must be reckoned with because he is one of the really big men in his party and because of the record he has made during his long service in the house and senate. When he is out of the running it will be because he has taken himself out, or because another candidate has received the votes necessary to nominate the 1934 standard bearer of the unblinded hosts of democracy.

Senator Underwood is not yet nor flirtatious about the idea of seeking the presidential nomination. When the subject was broached to him on the eve of his sailing for a 3 months' sojourn abroad he said frankly that he had the matter under consideration. He did not attempt to be evasive or ponderously humorous, nor did he convey the impression that he wanted to be coned. His course will be determined upon after mature deliberation and his decision will be made known in ample time for his friends and supporters to get busy in an effective way. That he will be an active, aggressive candidate is taken for granted by political observers.

Like republicans who hail from states west of the Mississippi, Senator Underwood enters the contest for the presidency with a geographical handicap. Precedents are against his party's going to the south for a man to head its national ticket. The electoral votes of the states below the Mason and Dixon line will go to the democratic candidate, no matter where he comes from, and the party must have a nominee who will be strong in the debatable states of the north and east. Hence the practice of giving the nomination to a man from one of those states.

Had Underwood not picked a northern city as the place to hang out his shingle when he began the practice of law, it is a fair assumption that he would have been president, or at least his party's nominee for the presidency, before now. The same ability, the same personality and the same application and hard work that have carried him to eminence in Birmingham would have taken him to the top anywhere, and the north has produced comparatively few democrats in his time who could have really contested the party leadership with him, matters of geography being equal.

But the senator is southern, absolutely and positively, as Gallagher and Shean would say. He was born in Kentucky and educated in Virginia, and Alabama is the state of his adoption. In the circumstances he might very well have developed into the kind of southerner of whom it has been so often told that he was old enough to vote before he knew that "damn" tank" was more than one word. That he is not that kind is one of the reasons why he has so many admirers and supporters outside the south and why his friends maintain so stoutly that he is the man to knock precedence into a cocked hat and carry off the democratic presidential prize.

Just now they are saying that being from Alabama will be more than ever a handicap to Underwood because of the Ku Klux Klan issue. This is the answer to the contention that the religious issue eliminates Governor A. Smith of New York, from serious consideration as a candidate. The democratic candidate, it being argued that the Catholic democracy of New York, Massachusetts and other northern and eastern states will not stand for a candidate who is even under suspicion of having any sympathy with the Klansmen. It is not suggested that Senator Underwood would be in any sense a Ku Klux candidate, but the point is made that it is his misfortune to come from the section where the Klan flourishes.

This Ku Klux issue has been stirred up by the contest over the Texas senatorship which must be fought out in the next congress. Senator-elect Mayfield will not be secure in his seat until the whole bitter controversy has been aired, and until the democratic senators, most of whom are from the south, have been forced to a vote which may label them as for or against the Klan.

The possibilities in such a situation are almost unlimited, and to say the least, the prospect is neither an inviting nor a pleasant one for a southerner who entertains White House aspirations.

Indeed, the Mayfield case may well prove to be as embarrassing to the democrats as the Newberry case was to the republicans. The latter have not forgotten that the democrats took every advantage of their opportunity to make capital out of the Newberry case, and it goes without saying that they will not overlook the chance to turn the tables.

One thing might happen that Senator Underwood's opponents are not counting on. He might take a stand and make a fight in the Mayfield case, that would add to his strength as a presidential candidate instead of weakening him. The American people react favorably to courage and honesty and purpose in men in public life and Underwood has only to make a stand that he is on the right side in the Texas contest and then fight for his convictions with every ounce of strength there is in him to be reasonably certain of emerging from the affair with flying colors.

Of course the whole thing is up in the air at present time and it is impossible to say what will come of it. Some way may be found to delay action in the Mayfield case until it is too late to make it an issue in the next presidential campaign, and if that could be done there are republicans as well as democrats who would sign with relief. Everybody is agreed that this matter of making the Ku Klux a political issue is loaded with dynamite.

To revert to Senator Underwood's democracy and the imputations cast upon it by the taunt about his being the best republican in his party, it is patent, of course, that it was a democratic ideal who said that. The Alabama senator is a conservative. He is not an extremist, and they are, quite satisfied with that alignment, and they ask, "Who thinks a democratic radical can carry New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and the other pivotal states, in the next election?"

ments is a sound and substantial public sentiment entrenched and impregnable.

Where is Joe Tumulty? Cannot he write a book on "King Tut as I Knew Him?"

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE SQUANDERERS
Plenty thakes squanderers of us all on earth.
Where there is much men thing their joys away.
Tomorrow may be cold and drear and gray,
But now we can be lavish with our mirth.
Why count the treasure or regard his worth?
Why strive to shut the door on life's decay?
These trees will long outlive our little day
And see new generations come to birth.
Yet even rain and forests disappear
And desolation stands where plenty reigned;
What once was squandered now is valueless done.
Much would we give for what we once disdained.

Wise is the man who sees beyond his day
And knows that plenty comes but cannot stay.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

A short time ago I wanted to sequester a few thousand dollars in gold so that I could feel that I was saving something for my old age, and I applied at the bank for twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars worth of gold coins. When they merely have a book account all you have is a lot of figures. When you have the result of these figures in the old kick, you have money. When you have nothing but figures in the bank and you have to lose those figures, you are not rich. As far as investments are concerned, I tried some of those. Two or three of those things blew up on me last year and I lost not only the principal but the interest. When I have none of these investments, the most I can possibly lose is the interest, which is good financing, if I say so myself.

When a man is living in a large city and has eight or ten children he does not have to look for investments. They just seem to come to him without any solicitation.

Well, the banker told me I could have this gold money on certain conditions. "Can you swear that you are an American citizen?" he asked.

"I can swear that I am a citizen of Sweden or Finland if it will help me get the dough," I replied.

"Do you swear that you will not take this gold money out of the country or send it out?" he asked.

"Yes," I said. "I almost never go to New Jersey, anyhow."

"Now," he said solemnly, "are you going to hand this money?"

"Well," I said, "I am not going to give it away and that is the safest bet that you can make."

"Are you going to hand it?" he insisted.

"I am going to save it," I replied.

"Well, that is the same thing, and handing money is against the law. Handing gold coin is a serious offense."

"But," I said, "if I cannot save this money, what can I do with it? It is my money. I have earned it and I am entitled to it. Do I have to work all my life for a set of figures and never see any money?"

"Well, if you spend this gold money as soon as you get it, and do not hoard it, you can have it and you will not be busting any law."

"Well, I have got to spend it I'll do so, but I'll have a chance to feel it once, anyhow," I agreed.

There is only one slight additional condition," he said. "Have you enough on deposit in this bank to cover this withdrawal of gold?"

"No," I said. "Cander prompts me to confess that I have not."

"Well, then," he said, "the other conditions I have named do not count. You are welcome to hand all the gold you can get out of me."

So it is that all these troublesome little financial matters settle the day after tomorrow, about a great many unnecessary problems. A good banker can straighten them out in a minute.

Five Central American republics have signed a peace pact. But will they know peace in Central America when they see it?

Who's Who Today

MISS LUCILLE ATCHERSON.

Miss Lucille Atcherson will soon take her place as the first woman in the field of diplomacy in the United States. In 1921 a woman took the examinations for consular positions and was appointed to the first time. She failed. Miss Atcherson was the only one of the feminine trio that came through the examinations successfully and several men failed.

An applicant has to be prepared to answer any question about international law, diplomatic usage, the translation of French, or German, or Spanish, the natural, industrial and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States; American history, government and institutions, and the history since 1850 of Europe, Latin America and the Far East.

After one has finished doing this on paper one must appear in person before the board of examiners to take an oral examination.

She is a graduate of Smith college, class of '18. She spent a year taking a secretarial course at the University of Chicago, and for a while was secretary to President Thompson of Ohio state university in 1916 she went to France, where she served in an executive capacity with Miss Anne Morgan's committee on devastated France, and later did philanthropic work in the Balkans. While in Paris she came into direct contact with the work of all European governments.

Returning to the United States with a rather comprehensive knowledge of the work done in the United States embassy in Paris, she made investigation at the state department in Washington concerning entry in the diplomatic service. She is now in Wash., on awaiting her appointment to a foreign post.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

March 14, 1893.—The Janesville Machine company, employed more than 100 men, is attracting attention all over the state for its industriousness and as one of the most promising works in the state.—The annual meeting of the Washington Engine company No. 2, was held at the engine house last night and A. W. Bauman was elected foreman.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

March 14, 1893.—No action will be taken by the Rock County Bar association in the matter of the municipal judgeship. J. W. Bates is being pushed for candidate by Beloiters.—There was a bad storm north of the city last night, but it was not bad enough here to interfere with train service.—Purple creek has receded, and has left surrounding fields solid cakes of ice.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

March 14, 1903.—Louis James and Frederick Ward are appearing this week at the Myers theater in Shakespeare's "The Tempest."—David Harum played the first night of his new play, "The Citizens of the Selection of a non-partisan ticket for the coming election will be held at the Opera house tonight.

TEN YEARS AGO

March 14, 1913.—Predictions are that a terrible storm is headed this way from the east. One of the worst in years has crippled the east. Barometers took a sudden drop this afternoon, while the recent storms and meltings of snow have increased the height of the river more than five inches in less than 16 hours.

THE UNTAMED TONGUE

He that kepteth his mouth keepeth his life; he that openeth wide his lips shall have destruction.—Proverbs 13:3.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author

SIXTY TO SIXTY-EIGHT

If any feel is being conserved in the present fastidious times, there is one thing certain; the other fellow is conserving it. Enter any store, business office or home in the famine district and you will probably find the thermometer registering the usual extreme of tropical warmth and desert aridity, and the inmates wondering what ails them.

There is no use trying to argue that folks should not keep their homes warm, for keeping warm is one of man's most primitive instincts. To advise people not to keep warm would be quite as silly as to advise them not to eat, or not to breathe. It might be all right to advise an imbecile to be careful not to expose himself to cold, although he probably wouldn't know enough to heed such advice. I must assume health officers assume that our is a community of imbeciles.

It would pay employers of office, shop or factory workers to detail one individual to watch the humidity monitor for the shop, some one to keep close tab on the thermometers—good, accurate, mercury thermometers placed here and there in the shop—and to see to it that the humidity never shall fall below the danger point.

Of course a thermometer doesn't indicate humidity, but nevertheless it affords a pretty fair means of gauging the humidity indoors. With a few exceptions, such as laundries and swimming pools, it may be taken as the rule that when the temperature in the air is below 60 and the humidity above 68 degrees F., the humidity—well, when the mercury soars there isn't going to be any humidity to speak of, and that is one reason why such a miserable depression every body in the room, physically and mentally, and slows up operations, muscular or neural. A humidity monitor should keep and the temperature between 60 and 64 degrees F., where workers are doing active physical work, and between 65 and 68 degrees F. in office rooms where they are sitting down and just sitting and talking or writing or otherwise passes the time.

The humidity monitor should throw open the windows whenever the temperature is above 70 and the humidity below 60. Old maids of either sex might cut him a humidity monster for this but it is the healthful way and the only way to avoid the very real danger of colds, influenza and pneumonia.

Just what is that danger? I can't delve it in a word. It is clear enough in my own mind, however. It means susceptibility to all of the respiratory infections, and that is the worst of the ill which people have in the low indoor humidity season. When misguided coddlers speak so positively and obstinately of their tendency toward chilling on trifling exposure, they are unconsciously confessing an injury from low humidity, that is, the result of overheating the air they breathe. Likewise when unenlightened parents complain of the constant nose or throat troubles of their coddled children, they express an injury from low humidity and excessive by door heat.

Accurate thermometers are good for the health, if you know how to use them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Advice About Tapeworms.

Kindly advise me about the symptoms of a tapeworm and the best means of destroying same. (M. F.)

Answer.—Pay no attention to the symptoms. That is one way to distrust the body. If the parasite is still annoying you after reasonable trial of this treatment, consult a physician. A general rule, when a tapeworm is present, the host suffers no serious effects and as an equally general rule, when an individual is healthy he harbors a tapeworm he doesn't.

Nerve Food.
What foods are best for nourishment for the nerves? (H. S. C.)

Answer.—No particular food or food can be eaten to build up the nerves. Nor can any particular food be correctly called a nerve food, a blood tonic or an artificial stimulant. Material for the nourishment and building of all these parts of the body is derived from all kinds of wholesome food.

Keep Kicks Out.
I am over 20 years of age and project from head. Anything to remedy this? (P. A. E.)

Answer.—Only an operation by a competent surgeon, to draw the ears back closer to the head.

Imagination.
Elderly people are naturally for everybody to have stomach worms of some sort, no matter about the age. (C. A.)

Answer.—Perhaps a great many more individuals harbor intestinal parasites than we realize. In most instances the presence of such parasites seems to cause no disturbance in the individual, but it is better to have worms, and since they are sometimes responsible for serious illness, it is better to get rid of them if possible. The only way an individual can get worms is by receiving them from another person or animal. Worms never spring from sugar or sweets or anything like that.

ASK US

(Any reader can get the answers to questions asked in this column by writing to the Editor, The Janesville Gazette, 201-2nd St., Milwaukee, Wis.)

Q. Which of the screen stars is the richest? A. B. W.

A. Photoplay says that probably Mary Pickford is the richest, with Charlie Chaplin, Norma Talmadge, Mary Pickford, Norma Talmadge, Harold Lloyd well up in the amount of savings.

Q. How wide is the Washington boulevard, Baltimore? A. F. H.

A. It is 28 feet in width.

Q. What is the origin of the expression "playing possum"? D. M.

A. Possums are known for their habit of lying flat as if they were dead, and this fact has given rise to the descriptive phrase.

Q. Is it against the law to use stage money? J. S.

A. The treasury department says there is no regulation law against the use of stage money as such, but if a person attempted to pass such money as lawful currency he would be violating the law.

Q. Is the consumption of candy and soda increasing? H. C. W.

A. Reports are available for 1931. These show the sales of confectionery had fallen below the 1915 level, but low cream and soda equipment have reached a higher mark.

Q. How many hurricanes are temperatures be transposed to Centigrade? S. M.

A. Subtract 32, multiply by five-ninths.

Q. Does Easter fall more often in March or in April? J. M. C.

A. In the 100 years from 1850 to 1950 Easter falls in March but 23 times.

Q. Should a fork be held with prongs up or down when eating vegetables? L. S. C.

A. When eating meat one should hold the fork with the prongs up.

What Is a Banana Canoe?

What Is a Tulip Dessert?

Possibly you don't know what either of these things are. If you know, the chances are that you cannot make them. These two desserts made by combining oranges with other ingredients to make delicious dishes. The banana canoe is made by using citrus-fruit in the family diet.

This recent scientific discovery that a certain amount of raw food is essential to the health, even to the life of human beings, has convinced millions of the fact that raw foods must be eaten. Citrus fruits are the best raw food, and a pleasing and palatable means of insuring this vitamin supply.

Info. on the health benefits of citrus fruits, and how to use them, may be obtained by writing to the National Bureau of Information, 200 West 11th St., New York, N. Y. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage on the booklet, and be sure to write your name and address clearly.

TAX COMMISSION

WANTS $100,000

Raised the Demand Full $30,000 to Pay Expense of "Investigation."

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Madison.—The move in the assembly to force an appropriation of $100,000 to the tax commission for use in investigating state income tax returns has caused the joint committee on finance to take back for reconsideration its bill allowing $70,000 for that work.

Assemblyman A. E. Smith, Virgo, brought on the demand for an increase when he presented from the finance committee report and took the floor in support of an appropriation of $100,000. The committee bill called for a $5,000 increase over the present appropriation for this particular purpose.

Defending his stand for a larger grant, Assemblyman Smith pointed out how the progressives in the last campaign had assured the people of the state that they would go to the bottom of reported tax frauds with a thorough investigation. He expressed the belief that $70,000 was not sufficient fund with which to carry on a comprehensive survey.

Other members of the finance committee defended the $70,000 grant on the ground that it would give the tax commission a sufficient appropriation with which to push its investigations. The lower house went the bill back to the committee, however, for reconsideration of the item concerned.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING

Pandora, Nicholson, so painfully shy that when she meets new people she can think of nothing to say to them, and never knows what to do with her hands or feet. She lives as a poor relation with her Aunt Maude, who has a house and a garden, and a daughter, Gladys, all of whom tell her frequently that she is hopelessly timid and awkward. She has only one friend, Morton, who is like her, whom she loves devotedly. Gladys, who has everything, suddenly marries Morton. Pandora, heartbroken, goes to New York to live with Gloria Gates, a brilliant, erratic woman whose little son, "Frankie," she takes care of. Among kinder people Pandora begins to find herself. She finds she really cares for Gloria's daughter, who comes with them that summer to Europe. In Europe, Gloria, now a widow, is in charge of Frankie. George, who has been in France, returns to London.

PLANS

Chapter 95
Pan went, obediently. There was a low stool that sat, usually, in front of the coal fire.

"This is like the evening I went to see you and you were up and up and up," Gloria said as she settled down comfortably and clasped her hands around her knees. "Yes, do you know I almost told you I loved you."

"Gloria said they were flatterers," Pan looked up at him with a little amused smile. "Oh, Gloria!" Gloria's sense of humor irritated George in his present sentimental state. "Gloria would say something like that. It was very touching. But even then I wasn't sure you were so very fine and sweet all through."

Then George's own sense of humor came to his rescue. He leaned back, found another cigarette in his case and lit it. Then he began again: "I don't in the least see why I should demand so much sympathy and sympathy from the woman I love. I certainly don't deserve it."

"Oh, but you do!" Pan touched his knee with a small brown hand. "Not a bit, I'm afraid, George. I've been frequently remarked that she's sorry for my wife. Do you think you'd be sorry you married me?"

"You haven't asked me to yet," the girl answered demurely. "Good heavens! Have I omitted that formality? That's because we've been talking of Gloria and I've been thinking that don't matter. Pandora, will you marry me?"

He leaned forward again toward her. For answer she said simply: "I love you," and she stretched out one hand to touch his shoulder, as he kissed her. So in that way they became formal. "I feel in a way, that I ought to adopt, rather than marry you," George remarked a little later. "You are so very young. How old are you, Pan?"

"Twenty-two," she answered proudly, though the birthday was recent enough. "Child!" he said again. "Do you know how old I am?"

"Thirty-five," she answered promptly. "That is maters." "That's nice of you to say," George said quickly. "But it's 13 years more in actual age—and somehow I seem so much older for 35 than you do for 22. You are so very young, you see."

"I'll probably always stay young for whatever age I am," the girl said. "I don't feel old, and I'm awfully clever, and rather conventional. I'm always a little surprised at some things and a little shocked at others."

"I'm glad of that—for I've seen so much I sometimes think I'm never either shocked or surprised any more. And after all, that's age, years don't matter so much. Do I seem so much older to you, Pan?"

"No," she gave him a quick little smile. "You seem rather young, because you don't know how to look after yourself properly. That makes me the elder."

George laughed at this, and re-lit the cigarette, which had gone out, as usual, from lack of attention. "All right, then, feel as maternal as you want to make me, my white hairs. I never wanted to seem young before, but now I wish I were nearer your age."

"I don't," Pan answered promptly. "I like a man to be a little older than he can be the leader and the wise one and I can follow. I'd rather do that."

"If Gloria were here, she would say that suits my autocratic temperament exactly," George smiled, puffing at the cigarette to keep it alight. "She says I want my way in everything. She'll say it's bad for you, for I'll boss you so you'll never develop any initiative."

"I'll develop it when I have to have it," Pan disposed of the problem. "As for having your way—my way is to want to please, so your way will probably suit me on that account, and will probably be the best way too."

George laughed outright at this. "My white hairs aren't age, anyway," he told her. "I was hit on the side of the head with a ball, and it killed some nerves so the hairs turned white there. The color never came back. Otherwise, I haven't a gray hair in my head."

"I like the white look. I've often wanted to go bald. I don't want to go now, with a little air of possession, she reached up and smoothed the old little white streak against the dark head. George took her hand and kissed it. "But what are we going to do about 'Frankie,' he said, "when we're married, I mean?"

TODAY'S RECIPES
These are few that equal in flavor to the delicious "chicken" halibut, and although the housewife may pay a little more per pound for it, it must be remembered that there is no waste and that every bit of it can be utilized.

If you have always fried the fish, try broiling it. The delicate flavor will be improved, it will be easier of digestion and, moreover, if you happen to be your own cook, it will be far easier to prepare.

Purchase for a family of four, two small steaks, each weighing three or four pounds each, and be sure that the fish-broiler is greased with a little bacon fat and the fish dried before it is placed in it. A moist slice of fish and an ungreased broiler means the fish will stick and break in the cooking, presenting a very unsightly appearance when done.

Without ever wasting a morsel of a pound each, and be sure that the fish-broiler is greased with a little bacon fat and the fish dried before it is placed in it. LATEST MARKET REPORT

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Wheat—Wheat averaged a little higher in price here Wednesday during the early dealings, an advance in Liverpool quotations tending to bring about some buying. Predictions of rain or snow for the domestic winter crop territory, however, acted as something of an offset. In the absence of any aggressive leadership, many traders took a waiting attitude. The opening, which varied from unchanged figures to 3c higher with May $1.19 1/2 @ 1.19 3/4, and July $1.14 1/2 @ 1.14 3/4, was followed by a slight sag and then by a general upturn.

Subsequently, buying for houses with eastern connections helped to uphold the market. The close was steady, 1/4 @ 1/2 net higher, with May $1.19 1/2 @ 1.19 3/4, and July $1.14 1/2 @ 1.14 3/4.

Corn and oats advanced with wheat. After opening unchanged to 1/2c higher, May 73 1/2 @ 73 3/4, the corn market eased somewhat, and then scored slight gains all around.

Receipts were small, and shipping demand here showed improvement. The market closed steady at the same as Tuesday's finish to 1/2c higher, with May 73 1/2 @ 73 3/4, and July 71 1/2 @ 71 3/4.

Oats started 1/2c off to 3/4c up, May 44 1/2 @ 44 3/4, and later held near to the initial range.

Provisions lacked support.

FINANCE

Wall Street Review.
New York.—Marking up of the call money market rate to 5 1/2 per cent failed to halt the operations of speculators for the advance, who apparently have been buying on the call money market. The market was in the latest series of 1922 earnings statements. Buying was quite diversified, but recent favorites, such as the sugar, motors, motor accessories and equipments, were foremost in the rise. Considerable activity also developed in the shipping, which had been dominant for a long time. New York Corn was up on outstanding exception, dropping a point on the announcement that directors had deferred dividend action until the next meeting.

but its heaviness was without effect on the market of the railroad list. St. Paul, New Haven and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico rising 1 to 1 1/2 points.

The uniform advance in Tuesday's stock market brought a large volume of overnight buying orders into the market, giving a firm tone to opening prices. The initial demand was most effective in the rail, steel, equipment, rubber, sugar and motor shares.

New high records were established in the first few minutes of trading as Puna Alegre Sugar, Cuba Cane Sugar preferred, Gulf States Steel, National Canning, White Motors, Jacob Heils and Associated Dry Goods, Nash Heils advanced 2 points. Foreign exchange opened steady.

The market continued under control of the bull element until well into the afternoon, with buying of stocks going on vigorously in many new directions. Over a score of industrials and specialties were quoted from 2 to 4 points beyond Tuesday's final figures.

The closing was strong. Upward movement was made in the late dealing with special attention being paid to the motors, motor accessories and Simmons corporation, the last named selling four points above Tuesday night's close. Sales approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Carrying as much interest as the title contest, the Parker Pens of this city and the Badgers of Milton Junction clash at the Y. M. C. A. here Wednesday night for the second place honors in the district amateur basketball meet. The game starts at 7:45 p. m. Originally scheduled for Monday night, the contest was postponed two days because of the bad roads.

Large Parker Crowd Expected

The Parker Pen Athletic association will send a crowd bigger than ever to the gym to root for their men. When the Dufores were battling in the city league, the employees of the company crowded the hall to support them.

The Parkers are amateur champions of the city for 1922-23. They have had a remarkable season for the first year in the game. The Badgers, while lighter than the Parkers, promise to make the battle one of the snappiest seen here this year.

K. C. Pin Meet

Opens Wednesday on Local Drives

Four teams will start rolling in the Knights of Columbus bowling meet Wednesday night. They are the Joliet, Cortez, Ponce de Leon and Hennepin.

Teams will roll five men, doubles and singles. The second night of the meet will be next Monday. The tennery probably will take up three evenings.

Cash prizes will be awarded.

ANOTHER town has come to the fore to boost harness racing. Kenosha has just formed a driving club. The plan is to give high class matches in Kenosha during the pre-season. This enthusiasm continues Wisconsin will soon be one of the leading harness racing states of the nation. Farmers may soon be raising horses on a larger scale and the material for the big fair meets will bring forth faster company than in the past.

PRE-SEASON Predictions on the outcome of the American and National league pennant chases are starting to come thick and fast. Three teams stand out in the American—the Yankees, winners last year; the Browns, and Detroit. The Browns will have popular sentiment behind them, while the Tigers radiate the favor of "my" Cobb. The Giants, with their new stars as an addition, look strong in the National. Other teams have not yet come to the fore.

RULING out the onside kick from scrimmage will help considerably to clarify the confusion in the game. Another change that will help is giving the defending team the ball if it intercepts a forward pass. While it may have the tendency to a lot of passing, it will reward the defenders for cutting down the flying ball. It will make the team on the offense strive harder for accuracy via the overhead route.

THE AMATEUR cage meet of the Y. M. C. A. which closes Wednesday night with a contest between the Parker Pens of this city and the Milton Junction Badgers for second place, has been more of a success than had been expected. The game has been more evenly matched and some real battles have been seen. It should help considerably to bring out more amateur teams in the future and build up participating interest in the game. "Y" officials here are to be congratulated upon their success.

"THE TOUGH" they are the harder they fall. That's what Luis Firpo of the Argentine is singing. Perhaps the toughest American fighter will now be rushed forward to a fight with Jack Dempsey, the world's heavyweight title holder. It would make a good drawing card, especially if the bout is held at Lawrenceville. It placed all of these champions upon the first team, leaving out only at center, although the fight is an extremely close position. Mills and Heldman were positions as forwards and Briesse and Hagen as guards. Briesse was also selected as captain. Mills was given the center position, Briesse the crack field general.

McKinney Tops Eau Claire

McKinney, Carroll and King are the leading scorers on the Eau Claire squad, with McKinney being the free throw man. "Mac" has a way of getting around behind his opponents, getting the ball away from them and looping it through the mesh. In Eau Claire's win over the Hawks, he scored 22 points, a high mark in the final minute that won the championship for Eau Claire. The previous night, he did the same thing in the game that his team won, 22-20, over the Hawks.

St. Louis Cardinals — The Cardinals of St. Louis are busy nearly every day until opening of season. St. Louis Browns find ideal weather after spell of wind and rain giving Manager Lee Fohl opportunity for workouts. Joe Cannon predicts big year for Minneapolis.

Mile, Lenglen and Mrs. Mallory won in mixed tennis doubles at Nice.

Cleveland rookies tie regulars, 2-2.

Plans New Plays for Feline Game

R. F. B. Conveying their rough spots revealed last Saturday the R. F. B. have been rushing through stiff practice this week to be in first class shape for Thursday night's battle with the local cat basketball team. The contest will be the second of a series, the Flivvers winning the opener.

The Cats will have Chadsey and Babcock back to the game. These men were absent last Saturday, being with the Milton Union high school team at the Whitewater tournament.

The Flivvers have planned a new offensive for use against the Felines. Whatfield, football coach at Janesville, will endeavor to find his basketball high Thursday. James H. Hammond, Ind., and Bond of Chicago will again be with the R. F. B. organization.

Saugster, high school coach at Edgerton, probably will referee.

Five Schools Appear Again in State "Prep" Cage Meet

Individual stars, as well as the leading teams of 15 sections of the state, will appear at the University of Wisconsin, Mar. 22, 23 and 24, in the greatly anticipated basketball tournament in history. One of the teams entered is Janesville high school, winner of the zone meet at Whitewater.

Crack Milwaukee Center

It was steady playing that won for University high all. The team lost a week. It was steady play coupled with calm team-work. Holzworth of Coach Davis' Madison team not only proved himself a jumpy and crack center, but he caged the ball for an average number of points that placed him as second high score maker. University also managed to land two others on the team, a guard and a forward. In addition they had a man in Stehr who was an all around athlete and a flashy maker of rings.

Five Teams Back Again

Five winners of 1922 district meets won again this year. They are New Richmond, Superior Central, University high, Menomonie and Two Rivers. New Richmond lost out to Fond du Lac in a series on battle for the state title last year.

The dopsters that hang out around the university are talking about five teams that should come through toward the finals. They mention Appleton, state champions in 1921, New Richmond, Superior, University high and Menomonie. Faster competition than ever is expected this year.

Four Appleton Men Shine

Appleton high, but many men stood out strongly in the district meet held at Lawrenceville. It placed all of these champions upon the first team, leaving out only at center, although the fight is an extremely close position. Mills and Heldman were positions as forwards and Briesse and Hagen as guards. Briesse was also selected as captain. Mills was given the center position, Briesse the crack field general.

FASHION AFFORDS MEN WIDE CHOICE

"Anything's in Style" Seems to be True in Men's Apparel.

The coming spring season in men's clothes will be a period of "anything's in style," according to present indications.

Models in suits are more diversified than ever, and as there are few changes in the lines, except in the novelty suits, even last season's clothes will appear up-to-date. In the variety of different cuts, ranging all the way from the plain sack coat of three and four buttons, as little form fitting as possible, to the "jazz models"—high waisted, light fitting, with four or six buttons close together, and piped pockets, are seen some interesting facts, one of them being that edicts of style-makers in Chicago and New York will be followed by some, while manufacturers will continue to follow the demands of the younger men, demanding more snappy and novel in their suits. It is this struggle that makes almost any cut of coat fashionable. In shoes, ties, shirts, collars, hats and caps, however, the demands are more rigid, if one wishes to be dressed in style.

For the range of models and cuts named, there is as great a variety of goods. Whipcord is still popular, the plain and unadorned blue serge remains as well-thought of by the more conservative as ever, while for the others, there is a wide variety of bangle and pin stripes in addition to the mixed goods, which is slightly less popular. The trend seems to be away from tweeds and similar cloths toward the plainer fabrics.

Exp. Valentino Trousers.—Trousers are cut straight down and rather full, while bell-bottoms have come to their own death from over-work. The conspicuous and flashy Valentino trousers never were in style, so they cannot go out, but their demand has decreased recently. Coats are cut 30 1/2 and 31 inches, while tall men would do well to ask for "slim" models made especially for them.

Top-coats are of the plain-back models, loose fitting, and are in the lighter shades in whipcord and special makes of tweed. They are knee-length.

Hats are light-colored, following the trend of the past few seasons, and one of the latest colors is the pearl-green which is selling well. The old shagbush of hats affected by the younger men is going out, and plain creases, always neat, are finding popularity. Caps are still of light color and woolly material.

Silk Shirt Comes Back.—The most predominant change in shirts is the "come-back" of the silk shirt which is here in all its glory—greys, blues and so on, white. Solid colors are finding favor more than stripes, as is true of the other materials. Attached collars are even more popular than they were last season and will be practically all that is worn except by those who favor the others for ease and cleanliness. While button-down collars are not sold in such large quantities, most men still insist on them for neatness of appearance. Madras, imported English broadcloth and a corded material are popular with the younger men.

Seldom have such good-looking ties been seen as there are in the windows of every store dealing in men's clothes. With the darker-colored cloths coming back into favor, a contrast is afforded and the instinct for color is relaxed in the bright, but harmonious colors presented. A new silk-and-wool-material is largely sold, stripes of blue, reds and greens being favored while the over-popular knit-goods find their usual large sales.

Square Effect in Shoes.—Little change is seen in socks, and only a few novelty materials are put out. The plain black and brown silks will be seen, many with stripes of different weaves, white sock mixtures on the same, order as were seen in wools, and silk-and-wools, have been incorporated into plain silk material.

Square effects are still seen in shoes which have turned from the lighter tan shades to the darker ones, the blacks still being liked. Bluchers and bells, plain and boxed toes, some of the boxes with perforations, form the variety that is almost as large as it is in silks.

ALLEN'S GROVE

Allen's Grove—Mrs. George Brownhead spent the past week with her daughter, Mrs. William Heli, Jamesville. Mrs. Ida Bromley and daughter, Irene, spent the week-end with the former's sister, Mrs. T. Carlson. Darlen—Mrs. George Adams and daughter returned to their home in Chicago Saturday. William Redness has let the contract for the eight foot cement foundation of a new barn, and a cement silo, to the Bergs & Thiele company. Metal forms will be used. Mr. and Mrs. William Kaly, Sharon, spent Sunday at the William Weipert home. Mrs. A. Woodard visited Mrs. T. Moore, Chicago, during the week-end. Mrs. L. Kemmit, Delavan, spent Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. W. Chawl.

Miss Miriam Conrad, of Reading, Pa., and a graduate of Oberlin college, has been appointed assistant pastor in a large Philadelphia church.

DRAWING LESSONS FOR OUR KIDDIES

It is very easy to distinguish a box turtle from other turtles, because the front and rear portions of the lower shell are hinged that they can be pulled up against the upper shell. If Boxy is attacked, he will draw his head and limbs in close to his body. A box turtle will make a very interesting pet to keep in your garden, for box turtles live entirely on the land. They feed on berries, tender vegetation, and insects, and live to a very old age.

WAVE TOSSES SHIP TWO MILES INLAND

Earthquake Phenomenon Told by American Officer in Magazine Article.

Washington, D. C.—A simple graphic example of what a tidal wave in only one day is provided by the experience of an American naval officer, during a similar upheaval, when his vessel was carried three miles up the coast, two miles inland, and dropped at the foot of a range of the Andes Mountains.

Earthquakes and tidal waves are discussed in a bulletin from the National Geographic Society which also quotes from a communication by the late Rear Admiral L. G. Billings, whose unparalleled adventure occurred some hundreds of miles north of the recently devastated towns.

"There is no natural phenomenon more deeply interesting and yet so little understood as the seismic disturbances which have from earliest history devastated the earth and carried terror and dismay into the hearts of all survivors," says the bulletin.

"Up to 1905, it is computed by an eminent scientist, Comte de Balthore, there had been 150,782 recorded earthquakes. Of later years, when more accurate records have been kept, they have averaged about 60 a year. There is comfort to the dwellers in most of the world to know that 54 per cent of recorded shocks have occurred in two narrow, well-defined belts—one called the Mediterranean, with 53 per cent to its credit, and the other, the Pacific, with 41 per cent—while the remainder of the world has only 6 per cent, widely distributed."

U. S. Had One Major Quake
"The United States has been singularly free from recorded seismic disturbances, perhaps the most disastrous being in 1811, when a very severe shock occurred in the Mississippi Valley south of the Ohio, which was felt in New York in one direction and in the West Indies in another. This earthquake changed the face of the earth. A vast extent of land was sunk, lakes were formed, and the course of the Mississippi river was obstructed for a time."

"Most of the earthquakes occurring of late years can hardly be classed with the great ones of history, merely all of the destruction being caused by uncontrollable fires. In the more stable zones long periods may elapse between shocks, and in many instances, Kingston, Jamaica, 215 years intervened."

"The cause of earthquakes and volcanoes is an elusive problem, and yet settled to the satisfaction of the scientist. Tremors of the earth may be caused by many things. The explosion of mines, falling in of caves, slipping of rock strata, and many other movements of the earth may cause them; but for the great shocks which have occurred almost since the history of the world began we must look further."

Still Ignorant of Causes
"There are many times there seems to be an intimate connection between earthquakes and volcanoes, the law regarding them has not been established. Some remarkable coincidences have been observed in late years. The terrible cataclysm of Mount Pelée, which, on May 8, 1902, almost instantly killed 30,000 inhabitants, was preceded by the earthquake which in January and April of the same year wrecked a number of cities in Mexico and Guatemala. The distance between these points is at least 2,000 miles, showing how deep-seated must have been the disturbance. If, as has been suggested, there was communication between them. The great San Francisco earthquake was preceded only two days by one of the most violent eruptions of Vesuvius recorded in many years."

"It is also a significant fact that the rumbling island off the coast of Alaska, called Bogoslof No. 3, appeared at almost the same time. A revenue cutter, visiting this island, was astonished to see that the mountain, or hill, some 400 feet high, on the island, had disappeared, and in its place a bay had been formed. Soundings showed a depth of from 3 to 25 fathoms of water."

Quakes Preceded Explosion
"The greatest of recent volcanic disturbances which blew the top off of Mount Katmai in Alaska and gave birth to the wonderful Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes was preceded and accompanied by a series of severe earthquakes."

Admiral Billings described the great tidal wave which he saw at Arica, then in Peru, some years ago. He was an officer on the U. S. S. "Waterer" which was anchored in the harbor at Arica at the time of the cataclysm.

"Some time after the initial tremor," he wrote, "the sea receded until the shipping was left stranded while as far to seaward as our vision would reach, we saw the rocky bottom of the sea, never before exposed to human gaze, with struggling fish and monsters of the deep left high and dry. The round-bottomed boats keeled over on their beam ends, while the 'Waterer' rested easily on her floor-like bottom; and when the returning sea, not like a wave, but rather like an enormous tide, came sweeping back, rolling our unfortunate companion ships over and over, leaving some bottom up and others leaving wrecks of wreckage, the 'Waterer' rose easily over the tossing waters unharmed."

"From this moment the sea seemed to defy the laws of nature. Currents ran in contrary directions, and we were borne here and there with a speed we could not have equaled had we been attempting for our lives. At irregular intervals the earthquake shocks occurred, but none of them so violent or long-continued as the first."

"About 8:30 p. m. the lookout hailed the deck and reported a breaker approaching, looking seaward, we saw, first, a thin line of phosphorescent light, which loomed higher and higher until it seemed to touch the sky. Its crest, crowned with the death light of phosphorescent glow, showing the solid masses of water below. Heralded by the thundering roar of a thousand breakers combining, the dreaded tidal wave was upon us at last. Of all the horrors of this dreadful time, this seemed the worst. Clung to the spot, helpless, to escape, with all the preparations made which human skill could suggest, we could not watch the monster wave approach without the sustaining help of action. That the ship would ride through the masses of water about to overwhelm us seemed impossible. We could only grip the life-line and wait the coming catastrophe.

"With a crash our gallant ship was overwhelmed and buried deep beneath a semi-solid mass of sand and water. For a breathless eternity we were submerged; then, groaning in every timber, the stumpy old 'Waterer' struggled again to the surface, with her gasping crew still clinging to the life-lines—some fearfully wounded, bruised and battered; none killed; not even one missing. A miracle it seemed, to us then, and as I look back through the years it seems doubly miraculous now."

"Undoubtedly our safety was due to the design of the ship which permitted the water to run off the deck about as it would from a raft or floating plank."

Stranded High on Shore
"The ship swept rapidly on for a time, but after a while the motion ceased, and, lowering a lantern over the side, we found ourselves on shore, but where, we knew not. Smaller waves washed about us for a time, but presently they ceased.

"The morning sun broke on a scene of desolation seldom witnessed. We found ourselves high and dry in a little cove, or rather indentation in the coast-line. We had been carried some three miles up the coast, and nearly two miles inland. The wave had carried us over the sand dunes bordering the ocean, across a valley, and over the railroad track, leaving us at the foot of the steepest range of the Andes. On the nearly perpendicular front of the mountain our navigator discovered the burial of the tidal wave, and, by measurements, found it to have been 47 feet high, not including the camp. Had the wave carried us 200 feet further, we would inevitably have been dashed to pieces against the mountain-side."

A rocket pistol has been invented in England, weighing only six pounds and hurling a life line a distance of 400 yards.

Other subjects are announced from time to time, and topics that interest practically everybody are seen in these coupons within certain periods.

The coupon service is but part of the work that this bureau does for Gazette readers. Answering questions is perhaps the largest part. Topics are as wide in range as the number of questions. Powdered resin put in soap when manufactured will help harden it and will give it a yellow appearance Mr. Haskin says, in the course of explaining soap-making.

On unusual service given by Mr. Haskin this week was to a man who knew the first two lines of a poem, and wanted to know the name and author. Mr. Haskin was unable to find it in any of the anthologies and collections of verse, but was able to quote the entire poem by memory.

While legal matters are seldom discussed, Mr. Haskin often gives good advice on where to obtain the information wanted. This service is free to Gazette readers; a two-cent stamp for a personal reply being all that is necessary.

Modern Pied Piper Kills Thousands of Rats, After Careful Study of Habits

Like the famous Pied Piper, H. J. Seaver, Beloit, kills communities of rats but employs modern methods instead of a musical instrument. Only recently Mr. Seaver completed an eight weeks' campaign in White-water where he estimated 65,000 rats were killed through employment of his methods.

Most interesting about Mr. Seaver's business is the vast knowledge he has in regard to rats which yearly cause economic losses in the United States of between $5,000,000 and $50,000,000. For hours and sometimes all night long, Mr. Seaver has watched the rat and other pests to civilization work.

"The rat is the most intelligent animal we've got," declares Mr. Seaver. "They can't be exterminated with a quick poison because they have their signal systems and not more than two or three rats would have been killed by the poison, when all the rats in the neighborhood would know it and a 'touch-not' warning would be obeyed.

"Have their playgrounds. Rats have their time for play, and playgrounds where from 30 to 40 will gather at the same time each night to play. They are more regular than humans and you can depend upon them to be there. The usual time for play is from 6 to 10 o'clock at night. Then they eat during the rest of the night. They go as far as two and three blocks to their playgrounds.

"Their hearing is very sensitive and they inspect everything before they eat it. They are wise in detecting the presence of humans and both see and smell them. Their teeth are as sharp and as hard as those of a squirrel and I have yet to see the wood that they can't penetrate. I have known them to go through lead pipe and concrete floors.

Endanger Buildings.

"As for being industrious,—well, I've known them to carry away so much dirt that great walls of buildings would collapse when the foundation would sink. Rats will carry dirt as far as 20 feet. They dig right under the foundation. In White-water we found one building where they had undermined one wall so that half of one side sagged three inches. In another brick building they had carried away 13 cubic yards of dirt."

Mr. Seaver has for 14 years studied the habits of rats, and other pests, including the bedbug, cockroach, ants, moths, and ground squirrels.

One night he watched a pitched battle between a black ant and a colony of red ants. "It was interesting to watch," Mr. Seaver said. "The red ants were feasting on some honey or syrup when up came a big black ant. The black ant took to the scene as it traveled around the others in a circle. The first move resulted in the death of one of the enemy, when she carried it off two or three inches from the rest before eating it. This was repeated. The third time it tried it, the red ants had mobilized for action and started a battle for their lives. They had all been informed through their sign system of what was going on. The black ant won."

Rats Spread Contagion.

Returning to the subject of rats, Mr. Seaver declared that the country is united in a fight against the fly as a health menace when energy should be centered against the rat which he declares to be far more of a menace to health.

"There are few shops in the country today entirely free from rats," the Beloit man declared. "They are far more active in spreading contagious diseases. Personally I know many epidemics have been started by the rat."

Speaking of the most common methods in which this is accomplished, he said that at night the butcher closes his shop after scraping the cutting tables clean. The next morning he comes and lays meat upon the tables which have in the night been covered with the filth brought in by the rats in their search for food. The meat is sold and the disease carried by the rat thereby gets into the home.

Often Infest Dairies.

At night in many dairies, capped bottles of milk are left in the room and during the night the rats crawl around and flip the tops off, quicker than a person can and drink some of the milk.

"In some dairies I have seen as many as 75 to 100 bottles which have been uncapped by rats. In others where cream was left in big vats, I have seen from five to ten drowned rats dragged out of the vat, and butter made from the next morning."

Mr. Seaver is the only one engaged in his line of work in the United States. He was an interior decorator and became interested in the problem of rat extermination in 1904 while traveling through this part of the country and down in Mobile, Ala., in 1907.

"It was even worse in that part of the country and I determined to devote my entire time to solving this problem," he said.

His methods have been recommended by the government. He uses poison tablets containing arsenic and other poisons but has found he can't kill all the rats by flavoring the tablets with one thing. So he uses ants every day and the next something else for rats are too clever to eat something after some of their neighbors have died of the same concoction.

The Pied Piper of Hamelin, so it has been told, led the rats to the river. When death comes to rats through employment of Mr. Seaver's methods, they are very accommodating and go and bury themselves, thereby saving funeral expenses and Mr. Seaver saves the undertaking bill by preparing the poison so that the rats' bodies are embalmied.

Worked at Poorhouse Here.

He has worked in many cities in this section which he has rid of rats. The largest toll of rats was in Rockford, where 350,000 lost their lives as the result of his crusade. He cleaned out rats at Delavan, Lake Geneva, Beloit, Woodstock, Harvard and other cities.

He started work Monday at Plymouth to clean up that city. He has several times been called upon to clean up state institutions. He killed 4,000 rats in the Elgin, Ill., state hospital, and also rid the Watertown, Ill., hospital, Mendota State Hospital, St. Charles Home for Boys, and the Janesville poorhouse of rats.

ONE-TIME COUNT COUNTS TICKETS TO GET ACCOUNT

Count Ernest Von Sturm and his wife, Theda Knorr.

Five years ago Count Ernest V. Sturm, officer in the Austrian emperor's royal hussars, peevish at his royal papa, came to America and took a job as waiter in a hotel. Al Woods, theatrical magnate, discovered him and gave him a show job. Von Sturm met and wooed Theda Knorr, a show girl. Everything was lovely until the count lost his job. Now Theda's on the stage and the count's taking tickets in a Chicago theater.

DR. MC KEEVER TO TOUR ROCK COUNTY

Series of One Day Health Institutes Is Scheduled.

Dr. William A. McKeever, noted writer and lecturer on child welfare and community betterment, will hold a series of one day institutes in Rock and adjoining counties beginning May 2. The institutes are community service departments, with the cooperation of Sunday school workers, parent-teacher associations, and other interested groups. The daily schedule will include addresses to high school pupils during the forenoon, a noon conference of the parent-teacher association, a supper conference of young people's groups, and a community mass meeting in the evening.

Dr. McKeever was formerly professor of child welfare in Kansas state university, and originating the better cities contest plan by which cities or villages of similar size each undertake through a year's efforts to prove which is the best city in which to rear a family of children. In this year a family of children in this contest. Dr. McKeever has developed a "score sheet" for cities which has been pronounced quite inclusive by community welfare leaders throughout the country.

He recently became the editor of a magazine and is doing only a limited amount of lecturing and institute work, hence southern Wisconsin is fortunate in being able to secure him for a period of eight or 10 days.

SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF

State School for the Deaf, Delavan—The visiting committee appointed by Governor Blaine to inspect the different state institutions spent Saturday at the school here. The committee, consisting of Senators J. L. Barker, Marathon and C. E. Casperson, Frederic; Assemblymen F. C. Smith, Ashland; Alex. C. Runk, Milwaukee; Gustav Zittler, West Davenport; and John Damm, Alton, accompanied by a stenographer, arrived here from Janesville, where they had visited the blind institute, and spent the morning inspecting the vocational department and the various buildings of the school, with Supt. Bray. A demonstration was given by Miss Katherine Williams, grade supervisor. The members of the committee were so favorably impressed by the demonstration that they extended an invitation to Supt. Bray to have the children give a similar demonstration before a joint meeting of the senate and assembly at Madison Wednesday night. The committee went from here to Union Grove to inspect the state school for feeble minded.

Mrs. George Fowler went to Chicago last Thursday to meet Mr. Fowler, who travels for the Bradley Knitting company.

Miss Mildred Oaks of the state school recently returned to Milwaukee last week with the Rev. Wesley Boag and family.

Genevieve Stapleton, a pupil in the sixth grade, was called to her home near Waubesa by the illness of her mother.

Mrs. D. L. Jacobson is substituting this week for Miss Edna Dowd.

The Misses Lucille Eddon and Marion Gates spent the week-end at their homes in Beloit.

The old laundry above the boiler room is being transformed into a blacksmith shop and supply room for electrical supplies.

E. M. Howse, Chicago, grand treasurer of the National Fraternal Society of the Deaf, will give a talk in the rooms of the Hotel Club, 100 O. T. building, Friday night, March 16.

Frank Pleasant, foreman of the state school printing office, is busy printing for various state institutions. Besides editing out the school paper, the Wisconsin Times, the boys are busy printing The Outlook, a monthly publication of the sanatorium at Wales, and 50,000 impressions of job work for other state institutions. An order for 40,000 time slips was received from Waupun penitentiary and was sent out Tuesday. Most of the work is set on the Linotype machine.

BRODHEAD

Brodhead—Pays Hooker arrived home from Madison Monday. He expects to conduct a farm this season.

Miss Mildred Oaks, Belton, Minn., was the guest of Miss Genevieve Collins Sunday.

Alfred Losey, Hartin, Ill., spent part of last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Losey, and attended the basketball games.

Miss Genevieve Collins was home from Milwaukee during the week-end.

The Misses Genevieve Dixon, Constance Hamilton, Myrtle Post and Kathryn Moore, Whitewater normal students, attended the games here Friday and Saturday.

Harold Weisbach, Minneapolis, was the guest over Sunday of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Weisbach.

Miss Alice Emery, Milwaukee, spent Sunday at home.

Miss Dorothy Murphy, Beloit, was home during the week-end.

Mrs. Carl Carlson was the guest of Beloit friends the first of the week.

The Misses Evaline Myhalter and Nellie Lyons, who are attending county normal school in Monroe, spent Sunday at home.

Mrs. Charles W. Fidler and daughter, Charline, were in Monroe Saturday.

The city has installed a large sign at the junction of Center and Exchange streets, establishing a one-way traffic in the business section of the city.

VOLUNTEERS SOUGHT FOR HARD MISSION FIELD IN ALASKA

New York—Three volunteers have been called to serve in lonely Presbyterian missions in Alaska by the Rev. Fred Eastman, director of educational work for the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. A doctor, a nurse and a housekeeper are required, each for a different station. The only attractions offered are plenty of snow, ice and scenery, loneliness and hard work, and an opportunity to do missionary work among the Eskimos and Indians above the Arctic circle in Alaska.

The doctor, who should be married, Mr. Eastman said, is urgently needed at Cape Prince of Wales where there are opportunities to develop a medical mission similar to that of Dr. Grenfell in Labrador.

The point Barrow hospital, which is the farthest north of any hospital in the world, requires the housekeeper. The mission board promises no lack of ice there for household purposes. The only source of drinking water for nine months of the year is ice melted over a fire of native Alaskan coal brought in by the Eskimos. The nurse would be sent to Wainwright, Mr. Eastman said, and should be prepared to undergo privations while serving there.

60,000 TROUT FRY IN JUDA STREAMS

Juda—Sixty thousand trout, "fry" received here Saturday from the Wild Rose fish hatcheries and deposited in the creeks north and south of town. This is the second shipment received, 80,000 being deposited in the creeks last year.

NATIVES OF AFRICA QUITTING SAVAGERY

New York—Natives of the Cameroons, on the west coast of Africa, are being won away from the traditions of their life in the bush and from their savage Zulu instincts and are being educated to the point where their industrial and agricultural development may have international significance, according to a report made today to the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

PLAN MONUMENT TO PILGRIMS. London—Plans have been formulated by several British historical societies to erect an imposing monument at Killingholme, on the Lincs-shire, side of the Humber river, to mark the spot whence the Pilgrim Fathers departed for New England.

Marquette Close Smart Cage Year

Milwaukee.—With the calling off of the proposed game to be played with the Kansas City athletic club team, Coach Frank Murray's Marquette university basketball crew has definitely ended its most successful caging season.

The Hilltop five played 21 games and won 19, doubling such well-known midwestern quintets as Wisconsin university, Butler, DePaul, Creighton, Detroit, Lombard and Armour. Games were lost to DePaul and Creighton, but these teams, also lost to Marquette, Creighton dropping three.

Joe Dunn, premier Marquette athlete, was captain and forward. He lives in Milwaukee as does Dick Quinn, forward and free throw artist. "Dukes" Duford, center, one of the best in the Northwest, resides in Niagara, Wis., while Bill Fitzgerald and L. C. (Stony) Morgan, the guards, are from Fond du Lac and Madison, respectively. Among the substitutes were: Junius and Roland Klumb, West Bend; Bill Curran and "Kewp" McCormick, Antigo; Joe Devins, Fond du Lac, former Oshkosh normal man; Chuck Schad, Freeport and John Panny, St. Paul, the latter a football man and former star at St. Thomas college.

The Hilltoppers used their new gymnasium for the first time this year. They failed to meet defeat on their own floor, the two losses coming on road trips.

Green, Manager, of Marquette 11

Milwaukee.—Announcement has been made at Marquette university of the appointment by the athletic board of Gervase Clark Green Bay, as student manager of the 1923 Hilltop football team, which faces the biggest schedule in Blue and Gold history.

Coach Frank Murray's Hilltoppers, besides having a tough early season campaign, also are due to open the heavy end of their schedule on foreign soil in their first inter-sectional contest, Boston college, twice victors over Yale, will be met in Boston on Oct. 27. Joe (Red) Dunn, premier Marquette athlete, is captain. Twenty letter men will return.

The following schedule has been announced:

Sept. 28—Open.
Oct. 6—Valparaiso university (tentative).
Oct. 13—Ripon in Milwaukee.
Oct. 20—Carroll in Milwaukee.
Oct. 27—Boston College in Boston.
Nov. 3—University of Detroit in Detroit.
Nov. 10—University of North Dakota in Milwaukee.
Nov. 17—South Dakota State in Milwaukee.
Nov. 24—(Thanksgiving)—University of Vermont in Milwaukee.

50 Men Are Out for Columbia Nine

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Dubuque.—Coach John Grezmeyer has issued his call for candidates for the Columbia 1923 varsity nine. Over 50 hopefuls have signed with Captain McCauley and the squad will be out on the diamond within the next few days, weather permitting. The Coach has had his battery men working out in the gym the last two weeks and reports all veteran hurlers in good shape. Several vacancies in the field have to be filled but the coach expects no difficulty because of the abundance of experienced material.

Columbia faces the stiffest baseball schedule in the history of the college. Playing on an average of twice a week after April 13, they will meet some of the most formidable collegiate nines in the middle west. Five of the teams on the list: De Paul U. Western State Normal of Mich., St. Viator, Loyola U. and Valparaiso U., are members together with Columbia, of the recently formed Western Interstate Collegiate conference. The biggest attraction on the card is the Minnesota game, June 5, which will be one of the features of the Columbia Golden Jubilee celebration. Definite dates for two other games are to be set this week. The schedule:

Apr. 13—Wis. State Mines at Dubuque.
Apr. 16—St. Viator college at Bourbonnais.
Apr. 17—De Paul university at Chicago.
Apr. 20—Valparaiso university at Dubuque.
Apr. 22—Valparaiso university at Dubuque.
Apr. 23—Luther college at Decorah.
Apr. 26—Campion college at Prairie du Chien.
May 1—St. Viator college at Dubuque.
May 5—Luther college at Dubuque.
May 8—La Crosse Normal at Dubuque.
May 12—Loyola university at Dubuque.
May 15—De Paul university at Dubuque.
May 18—Campion college at Dubuque.
May 24—Western State Normal of Mich. at Kalamazoo.
June 5—Minnesota university at Dubuque.

The air was charged with suppressed emotion, delegates were nervous, and for a time it seemed as if the conference, instead of ending in a "friendly disagreement," might break up in a row.
Just then the Marquis della Torretta proposed in a casual way: "Perhaps we might have our tea."
All concurred. The good old English custom, proposed by an Italian, had saved the day.

Clarence Clarence!
"Pa, you would not want me to work in a machine shop, would you?" asked Clarence.
"Why not, son?" asked his dad.
"Why, they are full of vices," sneered Clarence as he headed for the door.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Lack of Appetite

When there is indigestion and the stomach does not seem to relish food, it is a great mistake to starve or to use stimulants to force appetite. The best way is to soothe the stomach back to health by giving it the help of a pleasant, alkaline food. Such a food is acidophilus, which is rich in lactic acid, prevents sourness, belching, sour risings, flatulence, pressure that seems to crowd the heart and such distresses due to indigestion. Chew one or two of the large, white tablets after each meal. When the action of the stomach settles down to restful digestion, you feel eased and comfortable and you get the good food. You now tackle pie, cheese, pickles, sausage or anything you like without distress. You can also use acidophilus to prevent the distresses arising from indigestion. Easter Showing of Distinctive Costumes

EASTER time is such an enthusiastic clothes time, particularly when that is the time that Spring Fashions make their formal debut. Aply sponsoring the trend of the season's mode, presentations here lend charming variety in their clever adaptations, and echo a harmony of authentic style notes, of fabric and of color.

HATS; and what are more important. Certainly a Hat is the essential integral of the Easter wardrobe. They partake of much irregularity and novelty this season, but are none the less versatile and smart. $5 to $18.00.

SUITS in many versions. And when you step forth at break of Easter Morn, you must be sure the version is a correct one. It will be if you select here. Too, fabrics as lasting as they are lovely. $35.00 to $98.00.

FROCKS must be of printed silk or flat crepe if they are to be "correct." And if they're especially smart, they'll have a tiered skirt or a cascade. $29.75 to $69.50.

COATS may be either "wrap-py" or mannish—it depends upon the individual. Either are popular—we have both—exceedingly smart and good looking. Priced from $19.75 to $25.00.

Keynotes to Fashionable Costumes

Snug Hip bands on Balkan Blouse Jackets, pleated panels on tailored cloth frocks, circular tiers on the skirts of taffeta dresses, Bandana sashes around gay colored felts, Cape backs that distinguish smart wraps, printed crepes that fashion pretty blouses—These are some of fashion's keynotes, but they don't begin to tell the story.

You must see, must don these new spring costumes to really enjoy them and we invite you to come in and try them on during the spring opening this week-end.

We have received complete stocks in the newest Sweaters, Waists, Shirts, Hosiery, Kimonos, Silk and Linen Underwear, Maderia Linen and Aprons.

DRESSES

Spring Opening

Grand
Spring Opening
Friday and Saturday
March 16th and 17th

THE VEIL'S the thing. A mere filmy wisp of a thing, it's just large enough to fit round the clever cloche hats for spring.

THE HAND BAGS. Now is the time to select that new bag. We have smart ones in Leather and Paisley; also Vanity Boxes in all the newest styles.

HANDS AND FEET first is a rule many women follow—find easy to follow in fact when Gloves and Hosiery are so attractive.

COSTUME DETAILS, those intriguing bits of feminine fancy that every woman chooses as the final complement to her Spring ensemble are presented in assortments to which the countries of many continents have contributed their best.

THE SMALL FURS. Small furs are a necessity now-a-days to the completion of one's spring wardrobe—Scarfs and Chokers. They add greatly to the attractiveness of your new Suit, Frock, Wrap or Coat.

PIRATE-WISE the Bandana has stolen the hearts of fashionable women. It has wound itself around their throats, their waists, their arms and even gone to their heads.

SWIRLING lengths of new spring fabrics—What a wealth of dainty costumes their colorful patterns foretell to the woman who is clever with her needle.

A JEWELRY DISPLAY is the way one must look to be in the fashion. Earrings and Necklaces should match, but that's a simple matter here if you visit our display of Novelty Jewelry.

AN EXPOSITION of Spring Styles which accurately reflect the New Fashions.

The Big Store bids you welcome to view the new season's styles—Again you are invited to a display that is most complete—A showing embracing everything for every fashionable hour of the day. Suits, Coats, Capes, Wraps, Dresses, Blouses and Accessories of Dress.

Charming Gowns and Dresses

IN our opening display you'll find Gowns and Dresses that surpass in loveliness those shown in past seasons; beautiful Silks and rich Woolen fabrics are employed in the making—Dresses for street wear, for matinee, for tea time, to the small wee hours of the morning—Dresses from the inexpensive little affairs to models of fascinating originality, in all a collection you'll be charmed with.

Suits of Simplicity and Beauty

FASHION has decreed the Suit as the thing for Spring. And following her dictates we have assembled a collection of the newest modes that truly establishes The Big Store as the store for Suits. Nowhere will you find a more pleasing or comprehensive array than which awaits your choosing. Every new fabric, color and style for every taste and fancy is here—The materials so much in favor are Tricosham and Tricotint, in the two-piece and three-piece styles. The three-piece are shown with over-blouse waist and dress effect; colors are brown, tan, stone grey and navy.

Beautiful Sport Suits

STUNNING models in Camel's Hair; colors: natural and grey, also a wonderful line of mixtures in greys and tans, also invisible and decided plaids. Every Woman, every Miss, will want one of these suits this season, they're so novel, new, comfortable and smart in style.

Fashion's Smartest Coats, Wraps and Capes

TO all who are thinking of a new Spring Wrap or Cape our display will present opportunities of striking interest—made of the following materials: Velverette, Ormandale, Brytonia, Gerona, Marvella, Panvelaine, Veldyne, Fashona, Bolivia, Twilloord, etc. Beautifully trimmed in contrasting colors, braid stitching and all-over braiding—some brocaded Crepes in wrap and cape style; every new and popular shade is shown.

The New Mannish Sport Coats

FOR durability, serviceability, style and quality, the new Sport Coats occupy a conspicuous place in Spring's wardrobe. They are cut with the easy swinging grace; and are made of rich fabrics that add greatly to their charm—and are tailored with the utmost care. We show a wonderful variety in 100 per cent Camel's Hair Cloth Coats, also Camelain, Over-Plaids, Basingstok, Camelette, Polaire and Shager.

Imported Scotch Mixture Coats in all the latest models; colors are tan, grey, green and blue.

Fetching New Blouses

EVERY woman wants a pretty Blouse to wear with her new Spring Suit. There are many captivating novelties among them. Each individual model possesses a style distinction of its own. Crepe de Chine, Canton Crepe, Paisely, Spanish Lace, etc., all the new and popular shades are shown.

LARGER WOMEN will be delighted with the way designers have concentrated on those features of the modes which are most becoming to full-formed figures in fashioning the distinctive apparel on display at this opening. In choosing costumes ready-to-wear, you know at a glance which styles best suit your figure.

An Exposition of Things for the Home Beautiful—Second Floor

WE INVITE you to visit this section. New Rugs, Carpets, Lace Curtains and Draperies make their formal presentation—all that constitute the correct vogue to give the home that bright Spring cheeriness which all home lovers admire at this season of the year, have been assembled for your selection.

We Invite You Cordially
